McConeghy resigns post

ROBERT McCONEGHY

By JIM CARRAVALLAH Of The Roman Staff

The superintendent of schools in the Romulus Community School District has resigned after more than 14 years

Robert McConeghy, the only superintendent a majority of the members on the Romulus Board of Education have worked with during the past, resigned his job to take another position in education. "I leave Romulus with many regrets," McConeghy said. "But I'm looking forward to a different challenge in education during my next few years on the job. McConeghy added he is not yet free to reveal the position he will hold outside the district, but said he has been thinking of taking the job for the three or four months prior to writing his letter of resignation to the Romulus

He left Romulus schools briefly between June 1960 and February 1961 to work with the Michigan Education Association as a field representative. He has served as superintendent in the district since 1961. "One can't be in a school system for as long as I have and not have some concerns about it," McConeghy continued. "I leave with many regrets, but Romulus always will be a part of me, and I still will be interested in the schools regardless of my new position."

McConeghy's resignation is scheduled to take effect June 30 when his present contract with the Romulus Board of Education expires.

McConeghy said he handed in his resignation early to give the Board of Education adequate time to select a successor to him.

In his letter of resignation, the superintendent wrote:

"I will be forever grateful to the Romulus Board of Education for permitting me to be its superintendent of schools for 141/2-years.

"These years have seen the district recover from a severe financial deficit to one which shows a comfortable general fund equity; from one of the poorer districts in Wayne County to one which has the potential of being one of its most affluent; from a district of 4,200 students to one of a projected enrollment in 1975 of 6,850."

McConeghy added he will be on hand to brief a new superintendent of schools With accumulated time he has earned without taking vacation, McConeghy rightfully could leave the district's employ May 16. However, he informed the Board of Education he would work until June 30 to help the board bridge the gap between his regime and that of a replacement. McConeghy is married and the father of four children. Two of his sons are teachers, another is an actor in New York and the fourth is a junior at Michigan State University.

The outgoing superintendent began his career in education as a teacher. He worked in the Laingsburg Schools outside of Lansing and in the Sandusky Schools in Michigan's thumb area prior to coming to Romulus in 1954

Officials push campaign for renewal of 9-mill tax

Plans are being finalized to continue a campaign requesting voters to a 9-mill tax package they approved for Romulus Community School District operations more than five

The Romulus Area Council of the PTA and the Romulus Education Association have joined forces to fund power to press a positive campaign for renewing what amounts to 21 percent of the district's operating budget from

According to Darlene Poplawski, president of the area council, the PTA has agreed to furnish the manpower while the education association has agreed to pay the bills to get out a positive vote April 14.

"I think it's a case where renewal is important not only to teachers but also to parents of children in schools," Mrs. Poplawski said. "Teachers naturally would like to see the budget maintained at its present level to avoid the loss of jobs, while parents recognize that continuing the tax is essential to providing quality education to Romulus youngsters.

The 9-mill renewal package would keep taxes in the Romulus School District at the 27.65 level a limit which generates some $5.6 million for operating revenues locally, and which goes toward a total operating budget of

Mrs. Poplawski added that the area council is providing some 40 persons, including a core of 15-20 workers, to promote the passage of the millage.

Plans include sending two letters to registered voters in Romulus this week to request renewal of the millage and a telephone campaign election day to ensure that those voters who had cast ballots faithfully in other school elections get out to vote April 14.

According to Lynne Slaughter, vicepresident of the area council, the campaign is progressing nicely around the theme of "renewing support" for the Romulus schools.

"We want to convince the parents that this is an attempt for them to renew their support for their youngsters," Mrs. Slaughter said. "I can't emphasize more that this isn't a request for an increase in the levy.

Mrs. Slaughter added the area council is avoiding what it terms a 'threatening' campaign for passage of the millage, telling parents of the doom which would befall the district were the millage turned down.

"I think parents realize the importance of education in today's society, and will back it," she said.

Approval of the millage question would permit the Romulus Board of Education to levy the 9-mill package until 1979 to cover operating expenses in the district.

The Romulus Bicentennial Committee is asking Romulus residents for their own selections of a Bicentennial seal to be used during the celebration of America's 200th anniversary of independence.

During the 3-year celebration, the committee hopes to develop a set of historical tapes on Romulus prepared by the city's senior citizens, a display of artifacts from Romulus' past and tours of historical sites in the city.

In a meeting held last hope in continuing the battle, court actions week in Canton Township, the supervisors agreed to ruling by Wayne County which requires the Board services from county general funds.

The ruling came less than a month before funds allocated to finance the 28man force are due to run out.

The Board of Commissioners has asked the townships to take money from their general funds to contract for the Road Patrol services.

However, the townships involved maintain that the more than 7-mill county taxes paid by the township residents should cover the cost of Road Patrol protection.

The Board of Commissioners has maintained that the 7-mill tax payments are being collected in the county's cities as well as in townships, and that cities in effect are subsidizing the cost of police protection in

The council unanimously approved a resolution requesting a 12-year tax shelter for buildings in a proposed $370 million industrial complex to be constructed on 370 acres in Romulus' northern section.

"I think the council sees nothing but long-term benefits for the community with the addition of a GM manufacturing facility to the present parts warehousing complex," said Romulus Mayor Pro Tem Beverly McAnally. "While we're all eagerly looking at the taxes which will be generated by the development, I'm also personally pleased that GM is coming to the city because it will be such a good in-

"I look at what GM has done for Flint as a comparison to what the corporation could do for Romulus, and you have to realize that the Flint complex is tied to the ups and downs of the auto industry. while the Romulus complex is tied to manufacturing what amounts to essential products."

Unions must cooperate

When Harvard Prof. John T. Dunlop was sworn in as secretary of labor he most appropriately chose the occasion to urge a new spirit of cooperation among business, labor and government to steer the nation's economy back on course. Fortunately, one of those attending the White House ceremony was AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Mr. Meany has long been a friend of Secretary Dunlop, who has served in every national administration going back to President Franklin Roosevelt. The friendship he emphasized by his presence at the swearing-in ceremony had been put into words earlier. The new labor secretary, Mr. Meany said, is "a very practical man, a hard worker and very knowledgeable."

A close relationship between the two men, one representing government and the other symbolizing organized labor, can be useful in spurring recovery from a recession which has seen unemployment rise, our international balance of payments fall into a deficit of $10.6 billion and productivity dip by 2.2 percent last year for the first time since statistics in this area began to be kept 17

Mr. Meany suggests that he is aware that labor needs to be less strident and more cooperative if we are going to put inflation and recession behind us. The AFL-CIO leader has been saying recently that labor will moderate its wage demands during the next several months in an effort to help the economy recover.

It may be possible to say that Mr. Meany's private exhortation of union officials to hold the line on wage demands is bearing fruit already. Two building trades locals in Pittsburgh, for example, are trying a home-grown method of stimulating the private housing industry by reducing their wage rates for residential similar willingness to see economic realities is shown by the AFL-CIO's 14 million members and members of other unions, the nation would be well on the way to restoring a rate of productivity that is less inflationary.

Many industries are enduring a severe belt-tightening to get through the squeeze of inflation and recession.

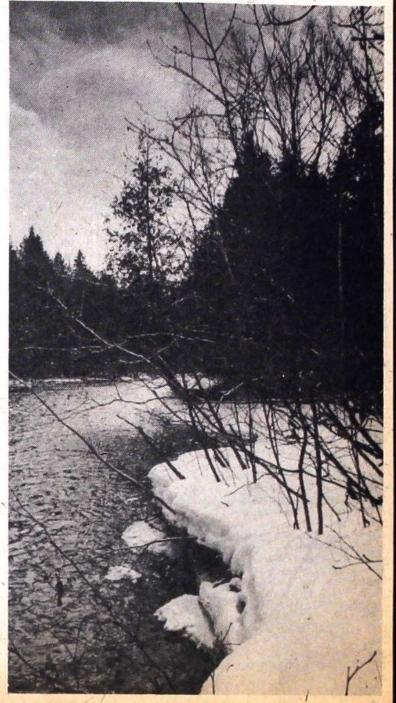

Declining business activity has made it a struggle for some companies to keep plants in operation and their work force intact. Plant shutdowns or partial layoffs have been common.

Against such a background it is hard to see why any union should not bend over backwards to keep new contract demands within reasonable

Smoker courtesy-hogwash!

To The Editor: May I take this op-portunity to reply to last week's letter from Mr. Michael R. Spaniola regarding making smoking a crime. I'm for it. Mr. Spaniola is the executive secretary of the Michigan Tobacco Distributors Vendors Association. I am just a non-smoking citizen with a complaint.

Mr. Spaniola, I will grant you your statement that smokers have rights. However, I also believe that those rights end where my lungs begin.

You are alarmed at the amount of broadcast time which currently is allowed for non-smokers rights. You closed your letter with the suggestion that the real answer to this question lies in the idea of courtesy, and not laws. Sir, I respectfully reply, HOGWASH!!!!-We non-smokers have had our full of the "courtesy" of most smokers. Where courtesy actually is non-existent, laws are required.

am not advocating complete prohibition of smoking, which you seem to fear. If you choose to smoke, that is your decision. I put forth the idea of segregated facilities, that's all.

It's rather incongruous that I can go into a restaurant and have no worry of food poisoning because I know the Health Department looks after such things. I am sure a restaurant distributing food poisoning would be closed immediately. However, at this very same restaurant, I can be seated next to a smoker and exposed to other health hazards, not to mention the annoyance.

In industry, the maximum concentration of carbon monoxide allowed in the air can not average out to more than 50 p.p.m. (parts per million). Are you aware that in the seat next to a smoker, the carbon monoxide level shoots up to 90 p.p.m. from second hand smoke, which is nearly twice the maximum level allowed for industry. If you doubt these figures, check with the

"Most cases involving a gun already have a penalty up to life. Offenses such as armed robbery, kidnap, rape or murder already have sentences up to life. You don't need a new law to make it possible to isolate the offender.'

"Mandatory sentencing eliminates that possibility And the thing to remember is that all prisoners, except for about 5 percent who die in prison, do get out some day. Both men, once their views on long mandatory sentences are known, however, then say short mandatory sentences might be a good idea, or at least worth experimenting with.

Neither man claims to have all the answers to the gun problem.

We keep waiting for Watergate to be put behind us, and eventually it will

But the local little Watergate will remain to haunt us. The big national scandal emanating from the White House was a once-in-a-lifetime trauma, but the emergence of corruption at the state and local level is almost a daily occurence. Even as Watergate fades there is a senator on trial in Florida; an exgovernor on trial in Oklahoma; an exjudge applying for parole in Illinois, and so it goes in item after item which rolls off the news ticker more in routine recording such as the baseball scores than in breathless revelation of the unexpected

Why is this? Are we such a corrupt people? Or is the system so hopelessly infected that it cannot be purged?

Certainly ours is not the only system of government which is eroded with corruption. Wherever there is a functionary with favors to dispense, there also is a seeker of privilege who will pay for those favors

There are some who feel that our method of prosecution of the culprits actually perpetuates the system of corruption. Too often we are so eager to jail the bribe-taker that we either excuse the bribe-giver or buy his court

Is not the bribe-giver as guilty as the testimony with a payoff of freedom, bribe-taker? Some would say even more guilty. They would say that the giver may have enticed the taker into sin when otherwise there would have been no wrong-doing.

Yet it works the other way, too. In many communities throughout the United States, public officials are so universally corrupt that bribery is considered a routine expense of business. The firm which would do commerce with the city or state as much expects to pay a bribe as it expects to pay the office or the salesman's

There have been times in such communities when suddenly the straw breaks the camel's back with just one expose too many, and suddenly there is a prosecution where otherwise there would have been none.

Is it fair to abruptly bring to the dock this one bribe-giver, having overlooked all of his predecessors? And are we not to hear his plea that you may consider his payoff a voluntary bribe but he considered it an involuntary shakedown?

It is a cynical observation of politics that the percentages are with the corrupt official, because no one will bother him as he fills his little tin box until a fleeting period of reform comes

That's why we must never refuse to heed the Watergate's, large and small, national and local, no matter how much we may tire of the dreary recital of

Caribbean lures victims of April's cruelty

By MARLENE COOKE Special to Associated Newspapers

April is the cruelest month of all, according to the late poet Robert Frost. Residents of Michigan won't disagree.

If for no other reason than to skip April's cruelties, it would be a good idea for the April traveler to consider a visit to the Caribbean.

In April in Michigan we have the idyllic fancy that flowers bloom and trees burst forth with promising buds amidst fragrant, gentle breezes. Truth is that the average Michigan temperature for April in Detroit is 46 degrees and in Marquette 39 degrees. Cloudy days and cold wet Insulate yourself against summer heat and winter cold. It's easy, inexpensive-and saves Natural Gas.

Our Natural Gas is your lowest cost fuel. But the less you use, the more you save. That's why thousands of homeowners have taken advantage of the lowcost home ceiling insulation program we introduced in 1973, under the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

And no wonder. It's easy. Inexpensive. And a wise investment. It can reduce the amount of Natural Gas used for heating by up to 17%. Help our nation conserve its vital natural resources, too.

Back by popular demand. Fact is, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's home insulation program has proved so popular, we've decided to announce it again this spring. Because spring is a great time to insulate. Contractors aren't so busy, or if you decide to do the job yourself, your attic will be more comfortable to work in. Not too hot. Not too cold. When you're through, your house will be cooler this summer and ready for winter.

The heart of the program is ceiling insulation. Ceiling insulation represents the most significant opportunity for homeowners to hold down heating costs and conserve Natural Gas. Many homeowners can achieve fuel savings up to 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attic. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and heating

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple, do-it-yourself project - and economical, too. Many homeowners can wrap up the project ofor less than $100. To assist you, we've even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job. It's available at any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company office and from many insulation dealers.

Secondly, you can call a contractor and arrange to have the work done. Or call us. We'll have one of our participating subcontractors install it for you. The cost? Many houses with up to 1,000 sq. ft. of ceiling area can be insulated for less than $250.

A payment plan to suit every customer.

You can pay cash. Or, pay 20% down at the time the contract is signed. Then, simply have the remaining cost included in your Gas bill. Pay it off on your next three Gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period. Interest is only 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PER-CENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Why not take advantage of this moneysaving program now. You'll be helping your pocketbook. And helping America conserve its vital natural resources. Contact us for details. And if you're a do-ityourselfer, ask for our free booklet.
